

2018 International Conference on the Legal Risk of Intellectual Property Practice and Artificial Intelligence

In respond to the current development of artificial intelligence issues, specifically in term of legal consequences of artificial intelligence. The Department of Financial and Economic Law of Asia University, on Friday, November 16th, 2018 conducting an International Conference with the topic “Legal Risk of Intellectual Property Practice and Artificial Intelligence”. The conference conducted into two session. For the first session, all the speaker presents their paper in mandarin and for the second session in english.

In line with the topic, discussion during the conference focus on the implementation of the legal risk management and intellectual property for the artificial intelligence. There are a lot of scholars from various university who attend this conference and presenting their research relating to the issue. One of the issues is about the artificial intelligence and the copyright authorship in the view of the monkey selfie case which is delivered by Chen, Lung-Sheng from National Chung Hsing University. He explains about the ownership of the Naruto's (monkey) selfie picture and the trial process until the decision of the ownership for the picture. In the end of his presentation, he said that there should be a modification or transformation of the current intellectual property system to cover the creation made by non-human. Another speaker, there was also Wu Shang-Ju from Beijing Institute of Technology. As the last speaker in this conference, he discussed many things about the current development and the implementation of artificial intelligence in China.

Basically, through this conference we would try to develop our idea on the future artificial intelligence issues, specifically in the legal fields. It is important due to the artificial intelligence rapidly develop nowadays. By considering their ability, artificial intelligences should be cover and regulate by the law or legal system in order to prevent any legal impact arise in the future.

Wednesday, December 5th, 2018
Andi Agus Salim